Our solution is a java server application that runs an http server (port 8080 by default). In order to compile our software one must use eclipse or the command line. To compile our software with eclipse Egit and Maven plugins need to be installed. Depending on your version of eclipse they are installed by default.

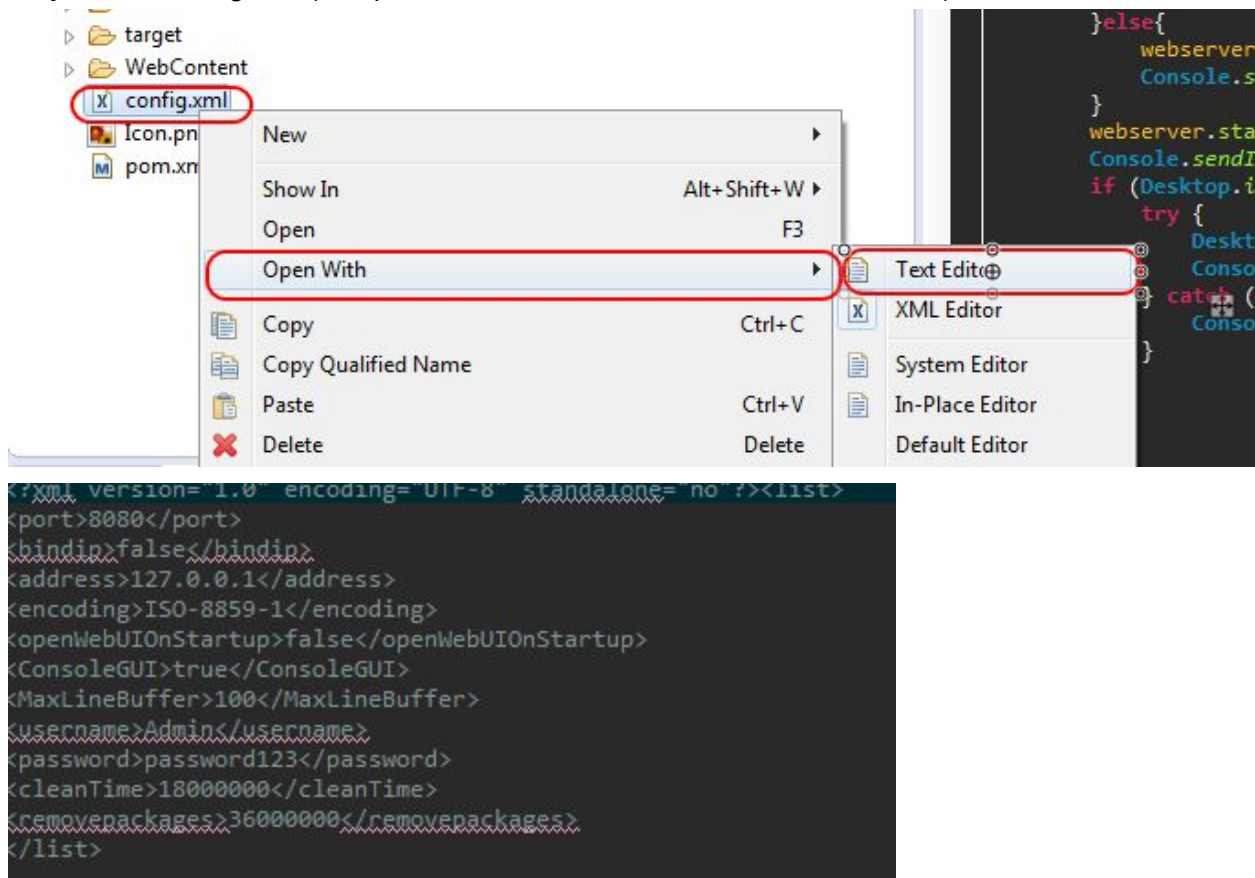

Step:1 : import project into eclipse.

Step:2 : Right click the project and update project with maven.

Step:3 Edit Config File (see product documentation for more information)

step:4 Run main method
